New York Financial Literacy Forum October 26th

The National Urban Alliance (NUA) and its co-sponsor, St. Johns University, along with local banks, financial institutions, with strong support from state wide and local teacher and administrative unions and associations, is sponsoring a Financial Literacy Forum on October 26th at St. Johns University Queens campus. The purpose of the forums is to encourage community members to join with school officials and their legislative and government representatives to talk about the need for schools to include financial literacy in their every day curricula.

The forum is free to attend. To learn more about the event and how to register please visit, <http://www.nyfinancialliteracy.com/>
