
Devin Miller

Devin is an accomplished executive and entrepreneur with over 15 years of experience in the financial technology and workplace savings industries. As CEO and Co-Founder of SecureSave, he is leading the charge in reinventing the emergency savings account. Throughout his career, Devin has developed financial technology solutions used by tens of millions of Americans across a variety of industries, with a particular focus on consumer finance, small business, and payments. He has also been awarded multiple issued patents and has been instrumental in numerous successful startup acquisitions. Devin's expertise in product development and consumer finance has earned him recognition in media outlets such as CNBC, The New York Times, and Business Insider. When he's not working, Devin enjoys spending time with his wife and six children, and exploring the great outdoors in his home state of Washington.

