

New EBRI website and email coming soon

We are excited to announce that we'll soon launch a new version of EBRI's website with a simplified navigation, new search, a responsive design, and other enhancements that will make it easier for you to find the information you want from a wider range of devices. We're also making changes to our emails, social media, and other communications. As we put the final touches on these enhancements, we've suspended EBRIef, our weekly email. In the meantime, please continue to visit the EBRI website (www.ebri.org) to get our latest research. Contact us at info@ebri.org with questions, or provide feedback using this link.